LIANG ASKS WEEK LEAVE; YEN TO SERVE AS PREMIER

Peking Sees Finish Of Liang As Designed To Avert Crisis

CHANG IS SILENT

Mukden War Lord Has Failed To Support His Appointee

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Jan. 24.—Premier Liang Shih-yi has applied for a week's leave of absence and for his duties to be taken over by Dr. W. W. Yen as Acting Premier, though the latter's appointment will probably not be announced officially.

Foreign opinion in Peking regards this as a definite preliminary to Mr. Liang's retirement and that it is designed to prevent a financial crash at Chinese New Year.

General Chang Tso-lin remains silent. His attitude is uncertain.

(Staff Wire to China Press)

Peking, Jan. 23.—Confirmation has been received of earlier reports that the resignation of Liang Shih-yi as Premier of China will be in the hands of President Hsu for his acceptance tonight.

As the other ministries are not affected at the present time, it is believed that the New Year will be passed without a crisis in the nation's affairs.

The Chiaotung Clique, which controls the banking resources of the nation, might, from motives of revenge, create a panic, but this would be cutting off their own noses to spite their faces, as it would bring immense losses to them.

Peking is calm, awaiting a constructive program from General Wu Pei-fu, now that his destructive program has accomplished its ends.

TUCHUN WANTS PEACE

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Jan. 21.—In a telegram to the new Cabinet General Yang Tsengh-sin, Tuchun of Sinkiang, expresses the hope that the Government will now be able to bring about unification of the country, disbandment of superfluous troops and financial reorganisation.

General Yang, in common with the Tuchuns of Fukien and Shensi, reports that he has telegraphed to the Chihli Party urging that its opposition to the Liang Cabinet should cease, and pointing out that if this Government goes out its successor would probably be just as short-lived.

Congress Adopts China Trade Bill

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Dec. 16.—The China Trade Bill was passed by the Senate late today with provisions incorporated by the House of Representatives for granting tax exemption privileges to American corporations doing business in China stricken out. The bill in general provides for the organisation under Federal charter of American concerns for business in China. The measure now goes to conference with the House of Representatives.

Adml. Li Seeks To Stop Tax Seizures

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Jan. 21.—Admiral Li Ting-hsin, Minister of the Navy, is doing his best to clear up the situation created by the detention of the salt revenue in the Yangtze by the Chinese naval people there. He has telegraphed to Admiral Chiang Chen at Shanghai warning him of the consequences and has sent two Aides to the Yangtsze with orders to prevent further interference.

Discoverer Of America Claimed By Two Countries

REPRESENTATIVES of two countries—Norway and Iceland—who took part in the recent historical pageant, "America's Making," held in New York City, both laid claim to Leif Ericson, the Norseman, who discovered America in the year 1,000 naming it "Vineland."

Leif made the voyage in a small ship, with a company of thirty-five, as recorded in "The Saga of Eric the Red" and "The Greenland Narrative," inspired by the desire to be free from oppressive European political and religious systems.

GASPARRI TO BE NEW POPE SAYS REPORT

Body Of Late Pontiff Now Lies In State In The Vatican

(Special To The China Press)

London, Jan. 23.—Press despatches from Rome indicate that Cardinal Gasparri, papal secretary of state, will succeed the late Pope Benedict XV at the Vatican.

NOW LIES IN VATICAN

(Reuter's Service)

Rome, Jan. 23.—The death certificate of the Pope, which has been sent to the Municipality by the Holy See, says that his Holiness died of influenza bronchopneumonia.

The body of the Pope was transferred from the Throne Room to St. Peter's for the lying in state this morning. The gorgeous medieval procession was headed by the Sediarii and followed by the Bussolati in red brocade carrying lighted candles, mace bearers, Noble Guards, Swiss Guards, Vatican clergy in surplices, Cardinals in violet and Knights of the Cape and Sword in medieval costumes.

On arrival at St. Peter's, the silence was broken by the Sistine choir singing "Libera Me Domine." The Canon of St. Peter's solemnly sprinkled the remains with Holy Water and pronounced absolution.

The body is lying on a catafalque, richly robed, jewels sparkling in the mitre and in the golden clasp of the Cope.

The Blessed Sacrament is guarded by two Noble Guards standing motionless with drawn swords.

Enormous crowds are flocking to St. Peter's.

TO SAY MASS HERE

A Pontifical High Mass of Requiem will be celebrated at St. Joseph's Church on Rue Montauban, Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, for the repose of the soul of Pope Benedict XV. The Right Reverend Bishop Paris will pontificate.

Franco-British Pact May Extend To Twenty Years If Poincare Has His Way

Conference Also Expected To Define "German Aggression" And Place Terms On More Reciprocal Basis

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Jan. 24.—The two Chancelleries are now carrying on the interrupted Franco-British negotiations. It is understood that M. Poincare has suggested that the currency of the Anglo-French Pact should be extended to from 15 to 20 years, and that the terms of it should be laid down on a more reciprocal basis, and with finer definitions regarding certain general terms like "German aggression."

With a view to settling the outstanding Anglo-French differences in preparation of the Genoa Conference, two minor conferences are being arranged, first, in Paris, between the British, French and Italian Foreign Ministers in an effort to bring peace to the Near East, and, secondly, in London, where Lord Curzon and the French and Spanish representatives will fix the status of Tangier.

Evacuation Of Smyrna Is Asked Of France By British

(Reuter's Service)

Constantinople, Jan. 24.—The Franco-British pourparlers with reference to the Near East are so far progressed that Lord Curzon has submitted a Note stating the British conditions.

It is understood that the evacuation of Smyrna is admitted, with adequate guarantees for the Christian minorities, including the appointment of a Christian Governor-General and a modification of the Thracian frontier.

This, it is suggested, shall follow the line slightly south of Midia on the Black Sea, via Chorlu, ending at Rodosto.

French and Turkish circles however consider this frontier to be strategically unsound.

'MAILED FIST' OF U. S. IS MENACE SAYS JAPANESE

(Eastern News Agency)

Tokio, Jan. 23.—Speaking in the House of Representatives today, Mr. Kotaro Mochizuki, one of the leaders of the Kenseikai Party, who recently returned here from the Washington Conference, referring to Japan's diplomatic question, stated:

"It is to be greatly regretted that the Japanese Government faced the Washington Conference without any definite policy. The annexation by the United States of the Philippines and Hawaii and the cutting of the Panama Canal are a menace to the Pacific, and unless Japan takes steps to complete her bases of operations, it is impossible for her to escape the United States' armed-fist.

"Japan made a blunder when she agreed to the naval ratio proposed by Mr. Hughes. That the Japanese delegates argued as to whether or not Japan proper was included in the scope of defense indicates, in other words, that they considered Japan proper on the same level with Hawaii and the Philippines, a fact which has infringed upon the national rights of Japan. More than this, with regard to the Far Eastern affairs which have a close connection with our country, the Japanese Government showed no definite policy. For instance, Japan made concession after concession on the Shantung issue and there is no knowing to what extent Japan will yield in this controversy."

In reply, Count Uchida, Minister of Foreign Affairs, stated:

"I regret that I am not yet in a position to make a reply in detail with regard to the Washington Conference, which is now in fair progress. Japan has succeeded in dispelling the suspicion on the part of other Powers that Japan is a militaristic country. As for the Shantung question, negotiations are now in progress between the delegates of the two countries, and Japan is doing her best to solve the controversy amicably."

Portugal Hit Hard By Storm; 50 Dead

RUSSIAN BREAD SUPPLIED

(Rosta News Agency)

Moscow, Jan. 18.—On the 15th instance in the entire Federation of Soviet Republics there were 187,500,000 poods of bread acquired by the Soviet Government from the crops of 1921. 150,000,000 poods of the amount was collected from the tax in kind and the rest from the result of the exchange of commodities.

POVERTY CLAMOR IN GERMANY IS FAKE SAY FRENCH

(Special To The China Press)

Paris, Jan. 19.—The Poincare Cabinet's declaration of policy was read to the Chamber of Deputies this afternoon by M. Poincare and to the Senate by M. Barthou, Minister of Justice and Vice-President of the Council of Ministers. The majority of the deputies received the Government's declaration with great applause. Above everything the Government will endeavor to ensure respect for existing treaties.

After thanking Parliament for its activity in voting the budget, the Government's declaration states that it would be a scandalous crime for a country that had suffered from unwarranted agression and had seen ten of its departments ravaged to avoid the payment of pensions to the men who defended her against this aggression.

Germany, says the declaration, is simulating poverty and claims that she is being ruined by reparations payments. But France and Belgium are united in their reparations policy and have already shown the world their unity. Germany must disarm in reality and punish her war criminals so that the sanctions can be raised.

The French Government will look upon it as a duty to work loyally and harmoniously with France's allies and will attempt to regulate all outstanding questions without delay. At Genoa France will insist that the conditions laid down by the Cannes protocol be accepted before anything else is discussed.

The French Government will be happy if a pact designed to maintain lasting peace can be signed soon with Great Britain. Every effect will be made by the Government to discuss problems outstanding between France and the other Powers in a spirit of courtesy and moderation, but the Government will none the less uphold the legitimtae interests of France.

Interpellations will, it is announced, be made to the Government at the next session of the Chamber of Deputies by socialist and communist members on France's foreign policy, the policy to be pursued at the Genoa Conference, the Government's plans for the economic reconstruction of Europe and the punishment of German war criminals.

British Yards Cut 3,000 Men Off Roll

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 23.—In pursuance of the Government's policy of economy and disarmament, orders have been received at the Rosyth dockyard to reduce its program. Nearly 3,000 men will consequently be discharged at the rate of 200 weekly, leaving a maximum staff of 2,600 men. It is estimated that a saving of £100,000 annually will thus be effected.

May Be Queen Of Albania

Mrs Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte

NEW York may shortly contribute a king and queen to European royalty. The Albanian Government, which has been ruled by four regents appointed by Parliament, since William of Wied fled to Switzerland at the outbreak of the World War, is seeking a king. Three High Commissioners of the Balkan nation recently were delegated by its parliament to find a candidate free from entanglement of European politics, possessed of the friendship and confidence of America and of independent means. Added to these qualifications Bonaparte is a descendant of a powerful ruling house. The only disadvantage to his candidacy is that he is married, whereas Albania would prefer a bachelor king. His wife is the former Mrs. Blanche Pierce Strebeigh. They were married in 1914. Bonaparte is said to have had three conferences on the subject in the last few weeks with A. J. Cheberyl, one of the three High Commissioners, who is in America in fulfillment of his mission. Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte is a descendant of Elizabeth Patterson, of Baltimore, who was married in America to Jerome Bonaparte after his exile from France by Napoleon Bonaparte. Jerome Bonaparte later became king of Westphalia, and remarried in Europe, Westphalia refusing to recognise his American wife.

China's Father Time Broke His Year-Glass Ages Ago

By Elsie McCormick

When China was created out of the moving waters and the rising ooze, an important factor in the eyes of the West was left out of its composition. It was given natural wealth, a gift for practical philosophy, and unswerving patience, but it was made without a sense of time.

Years mean little in China, months less, and minutes nothing at all. No man thinks of events or accomplishment in terms of his own lifetime. He is therefore satisfied to begin works that he will never see completed; being under no feverish compulsion to finish his effort during his own existence, he can work with proper deliberation. Can you imagine a Westerner starting to erect a skyscraper, if he were never to enjoy the honor of being pointed out as the owner of the Blank Building?

Besides the fear of missing his due credit, the Westerner somehow has no desire to plan for more than fifty years ahead. He flinches before the thought of the long stretch of centuries coming in which he will have no part; the Chinese accepts the future as calmly as he does the past and is quite willing to face the fact that physically at least he is not immortal. Hence China's habit of slow going is not merely the "manana" of the tropics; it is the calm deliberateness which comes from looking at life through the spectacles of eternity. Even the rivers of China, except for a few turbulent miles, move with a slow, time-contemptuous majesty in keeping with the philosophy of the people.

GET INTO LOW GEAR

We don't know just how we got this way, except that we were thinking about how disregard for time eventually affects foreigners here. Unfortunately, there is no concomitant development of a willingness to face and work for a distant future. The longer a person lives in China, the less time means to him. Young missionaries with the labels still bright on their steamer-trunks speak of evangelising China in ten years. Young businessmen see at first glance just what is the matter with the firm, where it lacks initiative, and how it can be reorganised so as to bring in six times the amount of trade. Meet the same individuals five years later and you'll find that neither the firm nor the mission society has undergone any radical change, and that the people in question are all worked up over some new arrivals who threaten to overturn things by their hasty methods and their failure to understand the situation.

We sat at a table once with the member of a visiting Chamber of Commerce party and a number of local business men.

WHY NO CAFETERIA?

"Why don't you start a cafeteria here?" demanded the visitor, after settling forever the status of Seattle as compared to San Francisco. Patiently the business men explained that a cafeteria would not be a success in China because people had been trained out of the habit of waiting on themselves.

"But a cafeteria is a great time-saver," the delegate argued.

POWERS BALK AT TURNING PITILESS PUBLICITY RAY UPON PAST CONCESSIONS

Seek To Emasculate Hughes' Resolution, Cutting Out One Section, But He Deems Other Provision Will Accomplish Purpose Of Putting Away All Past Bones Of Contention Among Chinese Grants

CHINA TOLD PARE ARMY TO QUICK

Far Eastern Committee Points To Waste In Cathay Due To Huge Military Establishments---Pessimism Over Unfinished Business Not Fair Says Harding

(Trans-Pacific News Service Exclusive To The China Press)

Washington, Jan. 24.—The other powers have shown no willingness to yield to the desires of America, shared by China, and expressed in the resolution by Secretary Hughes that all commitments of the powers in China be disclosed forthwith.

Revisions made by the Far Eastern Committee before adoption of the resolution eliminate effective provisions for the review of past agreements involving China which would have opened in a retroactive manner the whole question of the relations of the powers with China.

Secretary Hughes apparently was willing to accept the decision of the Far Eastern Committee in dropping article four of the resolution, since he has taken the position that article three, creating an international board of reference whereto all concessions shall be referred for testing whether they controvene the "open door" policy, would enable the Conference's agencies to review all past concessions and that the dropping of article four did not interfere seriously with the main purposes of the resolution.

Many Americans and the Chinese disagree with Secretary Hughes, the Chinese delegation formally reserving the right to raise the question again. However it is felt here that a real step forward has been made through the Hughes resolution by clearer specification of the meaning of the Open Door and the provision of permanent means of deciding what violates this principle and what does not.

Despite reports to the contrary it must be emphasised that the Hughes resolution, in its original form, in no sense means economic internationalisation of China or anything resembling it. It was not so intended by America, nor was it so taken by the Chinese. It does not impose any international action toward China, nor does it set any limitation on China's freedom of action which does not already exist by virtue of the Open Door pronouncement of the then Secretary of State John Hay. The issue of international control did not enter in the slightest into the discussion of the Hughes resolution.

RAILWAY QUESTION NEXT

The question of Chinese Railways is coming up following the open door discussion and probably will lead to the appointment of a board of experts to formulate recommendations regarding the Chinese Eastern Railway in particular.

Ambassador Shidehara has issued a statement expressing the hope that China will declare formally its intention to extend to foreigners real opportunities to co-operate in China's development.

The British delegation has proposed a resolution forbidding discrimination in charges or facilities of the Chinese railways. China binding itself not to permit such practices.

Secretary Hughes then proposed an additional provision recording the hope that future railway development in China would be so conducted as to enable the unification of the Chinese railway system under Chinese control with whatever foreign financial and technical assistance necessary. A formal entry then was made in the record that the Consortium should not be affected by this resolution.

BONIN FORTS NOW UP.

(Special To The China Press)

Washington, Jan. 23.—It was officially stated that there are no differences of opinion here regarding the status of the fortifications agreement, but that the delay in adopting the final pact was caused by the difference between the Japanese delegates and their government and people regarding the fortification of the Bonin Islands.

It was originally understood that the Bonin Island would be unfortified, but news reports to Japan caused the Japanese to believe that they could fortify the islands, and the sentiment of Japan developed strongly in the matter.

It is said that the Japanese delegates are trying to convince their government that the agreement against fortification of the Bonin Islands should be supported. The Americans believe that the Bonin Islands and the Philippines should remain unfortifield.

TELLS CHINA CUT ARMY

Washington, Jan. 22.—At a meeting of the committee on Pacific and Far Eastern questions the subcommittee on customs tariff in China presented a resolution in reference to the disbandment of certain military forces in China, which, with slight amendment, was unanimously adopted in the following form:

"Whereas the Powers attending this conference have been deeply impressed with the severe drain on the public revenue of China through the maintenance in various parts of the country of military forces excessive in their number and controlled by

CHINESE TO BUY JAP INTERESTS IN SALT MINES

Washington, Jan. 24.—The Japanese and Chinese delegates have reached an agreement for the returning of the Shantung salt mines to China, China purchasing the Japanese interest in these mines at a fair price to be determined later.

SENATOR NORRIS WOULD DISSOLVE INT'L. HARVESTER

(U. S. Navy Radio Through Reuter)

Washington, Jan. 22.—Senator Norris yesterday introduced a resolution directing the Attorney-General to inform the Senate whether the Department of Justice contemplated any separate action against the International Harvester Co. "for the purpose of effectively restoring competitive conditions" between the various corporations making up that concern.

The resolution said that the Corporation continued to dominate the farm implement business.

Head Of Genro Ill With Fever; Family Watches

(Eastern News Agency)

Tokio, January 24.—Owing to his toothache, Prince Yamagata some time ago had an attack of fever. After undergoing surgical treatment the Prince was reported to have recovered considerably.

Inasmuch he has been indisposed for the last three months and on account of the recent severe cold, he is now so much exhausted that his family and relations are remaining at the bedside and nursing him day and night. The temperature of the patient was 101.3 degrees last night.

the military chief the province without coordination and whereas the continued maintenance of these forces appears to be mainly responsible for China's present unsettled political conditions; and whereas it is felt a considerable and prompt reduction of these forces will not only advance the cause of China's political unity and economic development but will give the nation a financial respite.

"Therefore, without intention to interfere in the internal problems of China but prompted by a sincere desire to see China develop and maintain for herself an effective and stable government alike in her own interests and in the general interest of trade, and being inspired by the spirit of this conference whose aim is to reduce through the limitation of armaments the disbursements which manifestly necessitate the greater part of the internal revenue thereby draining enterprise and national prosperity, it is resolved that this conference express to China the earnest hope that immediate and effective steps be taken by the Chinese government to reduce the aforesaid military forces and expenditures."

The committee then continued to draft resolutions on the listing of existing commitments of China and the balance of the meeting was taken up with a discussion of details of the resolution. Amendments were suggested and the chairman stated that the amended forms of the resolution would be presented for consideration at the next meeting.

HARDING OPTIMISTIC

(Reuter's Special Service)

London, Jan. 23.—A bad attack of depression regarding the Conference has been recently afflicting Washington, but the feeling is now more cheerful partly in consequence of President Harding's pointing out that pessimism was not justified and that it was not fair to criticise work that was only half done.

The Washington correspondent of the Morning Post suggests that during the next few days China will be required either to accept the Japanese Shantung proposals or definitely to reject them and to give substantial reasons for their rejection.

The Conference will then proceed to consider the Siberian question. The journal adds that the Japanese are prepared to announce the immediate evacuation of Siberia and a resolution recognising the territorial integrity of Russia will be adopted. Japan is also prepared to abandon certain of the Twenty-One Demands, namely those giving her monopolistic rights and political control, as contrary to agreements already reached by the Conference.

It is interesting to note that the resolution adopted relative to agreements concerning China binds the Powers to file all such agreements "which they deem to be still in force and upon which they may desire to rely." While every such treaty and agreement concluded after this shall be notified within sixty days to the Powers, China must also give notice of all agreements with outside governments or nationals.

It is understood to be the view of the United States Government that any questionable commitments that may have been entered into will probably not be made public but will be allowed to go by the board and that in the event of a conflict of interests being disclosed by filing, a way will be open for their adjustment.

CHINA DISAPPOINTED

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Jan. 18.—The reports of the proceedings at Washington seem to many thinkers in Japan to point to the conclusion that the Chinese delegates will return far from satisfied with their achievement.

This lack of satisfaction will, it is believed, create a greater feeling of discontent in China which it is feared is bound to make the relations between that country and Japan difficult and afford the enemies of the latter an opportunity of making things decidedly unpleasant for the Japanese. This belief now runs counter to the hope entertained during the Conference that China and Japan could, as they are Asiatic powers far removed from America and Europe, settle their difficulties among themselves.

It is on all sides admitted that China as a friend would not only be a great wall of protection for Japan but also a source of raw material for manufacturing purposes as well as a vast market. Therefore Japan, it is asserted, should not allow anything that will prevent the recovery by China of her full independence as a nation.

JAPANESE HOLD OFF

(Special To The China Press)

Washington, Jan. 23.—The American proposal to make public all agreements relating to China came before the committee on Far Eastern and Pacific Affairs for formal adoption. Although the proposal was approved in principle, the problem of defining the exact scope of the agreement precipitated a long debate, and final action was postponed at the request of Japan.

TO QUIT SIBERIA

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Jan. 23.—Baron Shidehara made an important statement at the meeting of the Far Eastern Committee today to the effect that Japan had no territorial designs on Russia and that the Japanese troops would be withdrawn directly a stable government had been established.

It is understood that Saghalien will be included in this scheme, together with other parts of Siberia.

This statement has greatly gratified the other delegates. The Siberian question will be discussed at tomorrow's session.

FILIPINO STRIKE BREAKERS ARRIVE

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hongkong, Jan. 24.—The Wenatchee from Manila today brought in 315 Filipinos with whom to replace the Chinese crews of the Admiral liners Hoosier State and Bay State, the latter of which is arriving shortly, also some feederships of the Pacific Mail Company. The Filipinos did not land but were transferred to the Hoosier State under police protection.

A leading firm of Chinese stevedores today told Reuter's representative that in view of the introduction of the Filipinos, there was a possibility of the stevedores ceasing work in this port, but not before China New Year.

Daniel Edward Robinson, an unemployed seaman, was today sentenced to two months' hard labor for unlawfully going on board the steamer Kwangchow with the object of taking off the cooks and stewards and bringing them ashore.

TRIES SUICIDE

A Chinese charged with operating an opium den in the Central district failed to appear to answer to the charge in the Mixed Court a few days ago and his bail, $100, was forfeited. Yesterday the man appeared to answer a charge of attempted suicide. According to the police testimony, after he had been arrested he tried to cut his throat and has since been in hospital. The accused told the court that he had taken some medicine to break up the opium habit, that the drug was too strong and he had not known what he was about. The court cautioned and dismissed him.

CUT REPARATIONS AND ARMIES, IS ADVICE OF U. S.

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Jan. 23.—Significance is attached to a statement by the United States section of the Inter-American High Commission of which Mr. Hoover, the Secretary of Commerce, is Chairman, as reflecting considerations likely to weigh largely with the Government in connection with its reply to the invitation to the Genoa Economic Conference.

This statement says that two major problems must be solved before the substantial rehabilitation of the world can be hoped for, namely, the readjustment of German reparations payments on a basis "calculated to be within practical power of Germans to pay" and, secondly, the reduction of the armed forces maintained by certain continental nations, expenditure on which involves currency inflation and the defeat of all other efforts to balance national budgets.

HARDING WANTS LAKE TO OCEAN ROUTE FOR TRADE

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Jan. 23.—A national agricultural conference, attended by 300 delegates, representing all branches of agriculture and all industries related to farming, opened here today.

President Harding delivered an address in which he declared that the feasibility of a waterway between the Great Lakes and the St. Lawrence was unquestioned and that the heart of the American continent, with its vast industrial resources, would thereby be brought into direct communication with all the ocean routes, with the most stimulating effect on the life of the interior of the continent. He declared further that the cost of the project was small as compared with that of other great engineering works.

Battle Trenches Give Shelter To Jews Of Poland

(Reuter's Service)

The majority of the trench inhabitants are Jews, who fled or were driven from their homes in 1915 and have now returned to find the towns destroyed. At Brest-Litovsk, the advices said, there are almost no houses left.

A slow smile draped itself over the countenances of the local business men, but they said nothing at all. They didn't have the heart to tell the energetic booster from San Francisco, who probably lunches in a stand-up restaurant every noon, that people here take two hours for tiffin. They might have put into words the vast concept of time in China, the inevitable reaction of this concept on foreigners and the total futility of garnering minutes in Asia, but then, what was the use? Nobody fresh from a country where people mull their way by the thousands through a subway mob just to change trains and save five minutes would have the remotest idea what those business men were talking about.

YEARS SLIP IDLY BY

One of the fruits of the time concept is the habit of perpetual postponement. The sense of long years behind and long years ahead which is inevitably absorbed in China gives one the idea that there is plenty of time for everything. If business firms and mission boards did not forcibly bundle people off on furlough at the end of a term of years, many of them would stay on in the East until they reached the pitiable condition of the man who has "missed too many boats." People who have no definite time set for their home-going linger on from year to year, dreading the effort of departure until they awake someday to the fact that they wouldn't be of any use at home, even if they did go.

The same hesitation is seen regarding a visit to other points in China. We know of one man who has lived in Shanghai nineteen years without ever having seen Soochow, Ningpo, Peking, or Hangchow. He is always intending to go, of course, but he has never worked his volition up the pitch of an actual departure. Hangchow has been here since before the days of Marco Polo—why shouldn't it stay a little longer? As for Soochow, it's only a two and a half hour run on the train anyway, and that can be done any time. So he sits back comfortably and watches the years drift past, having seen no more of China than the day he first landed, nineteen years ago.

CROSSING TOO RUSHED

Personally, we have been trying to go to Peking for three months, but we stay on because somebody told us that it is cold on the train, or because a dress isn't finished or because we dread the crossing of the Yangtsze at Nanking. The last time we crossed at that point such a rush of baggage coolies came on board that the passengers, who had standing room only anyway, were catapaulted against each other with various alarms and excursions. We put one foot through and a coolie tried to carry away a Chinese passenger's straw trunk and a coolie tried to carry away the trunk with our foot still in it. Then a missionary we knew completed the tableau by hitting the coolie over the head with his umbrella while the Chinese passenger capered about wildly, expressing highly-flavored opinions of foreign ladies who put their feet through trunks. No, we are not exactly keen to cross the Yangtsze again and Peking, rich in symbols of eternity, seems to deprecate undue hurry anyway. We have watched parties of tourists rush like ants over long, white marbled promenades, across great peaceful spaces, and up spirit ways flecked with the symbols of the phoenix and the cloud. All the while Peking seemed to smile her wise old smile of the centuries and to contemplate from heights of vast peace the foolish Westerners who take time seriously.

THEN WHY WORRY?

We doubt if anyone ever lived for a time in China without losing some of his respect for moments. This loss is shown in trivial ways by perpetual lateness at the theater, delay in settling business matters, and a tendency to postpone everything from having shoes repaired to visiting a neighboring city. It is shown more emphatically among those who remain in the East by a complete change in mental attitude and by a reconciliation to advancing years that is rarely encountered at home. There are not many elderly foreigners in China, but those we have met seem so peacefully content, so thoroughly imbued with the Chinese idea that age brings honor, and so saturated with the thought of time's comparative unimportance that they might well be envied by their contemporaries at home.

A realisation of Time's nothingness has its compensations after all.

U. S. EDUCATORS ADDRESS SCHOOL CONFERENCE HERE

Drs. Mary Woolley And W. F. Russel Tell Of Progress In Teaching At Home

The Conference of the East China Christian Educational association, in Union Church hall, was addressed by two prominent American educators yesterday, the speakers being Dr. Mary Woolley of Mt. Holyoke, and Dr. W. F. Russell, of the State University of Iowa. Dr. E. D. Burton, chairman of the commission that has been conducting an educational investigation in China, also spoke. Sectional conferences were also held during the day.

Dr. Russell's address was largely of a technical nature, and dealt with the best methods of teaching, as determined by a number of experiments that had been carried out at the Iowa school. The speaker was of the opinion that a new era had arrived in teaching methods, and that the old methods would give way to new ones. He instanced the great success that had attended recent efforts to improve the efficiency of teaching methods in the Iowa schools, and emphasised the importance of giving more attention to the individual pupil.

Dr. Burton discussed the permanency of Christian education in China, and expressed the belief that such education could not be put on a satisfactory and lasting basis until there could be co-operation between the state and the voluntary agencies. He pointed out the danger of leaving such education wholly in the hands of the state, which involved a political menace. The speaker made the interesting statement that there are 37,000 private schools in China, and five times as many pupils in them, with many additional schools being established annually.

Dr. Burton said that in the course of the investigation of educational affairs in China he and his associates had had the hearty assistance and co-operation of government and provincial officials. The interchange of ideas, he thought, would be bound to result in much good to the cause of education.

The speaker expressed the opinion that the Christian missions needed more middle schools, rather than schools of college class. Christian education would develop strongly only in a strong Christian community, and to create such communities a large number of middle schools were needed.

YOUTH IS SLAIN, ANOTHER INJURED BY ARMED GANG

The 17-year-old son of a bamboo hong proprietor at 740 Dixwell Road was shot dead and an accountant was wounded by armed robbers who attempted to hold up the establishment Monday night.

The robbers, seven or eight in number, entered the place shortly before 7 p.m., three of them displaying pistols. Some $3,000 in notes had been brought in from a Nantao bank shortly before and immediately the men entered one of the shop men raised the alarm. Whereupon the robbers opened fire. The lad was sitting on a chair pulling on his shoes when a bullet struck him in the head, killing him instantly. Five shots were fired, it is believed, one of them creasing the forehead of the accountant.

The robbers fled after the fusillade without having secured anything in the way of booty. An inquest was held over the body of the dead youth yesterday, it being found that he came to his death as a result of a bullet wound inflicted by some person or persons unknown.

PEKING AWAITS 7 MILLION LOAN, COSTLY MIRACLE

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, Jan. 21.—An issue of $7,000,000, in treasury notes secured by the salt surplus and to be taken up by the Banks of Communications and China, is the miracle to which the Peking Government is looking to tide them over the New Year; but as far as can be learned from authoritative sources it is a matter of "and after that the deluge."

It is understood that the Foreign Inspectorate of the Salt, acting upon the order of the Ministry of Finance, has informed the above-mentioned Chinese Banks that coincidentally with the release of the surplus of the salt revenues every month, the Salt Inspector will order the release of funds for the payment of interest and amortisation of the $7,000,000 that these banks have agreed to take up, and for which they are going to pay to the Government a certain amount of specie. It is understood that the discount of this loan, which is to run for two years, is thirty two percent, and that the interest is fifteen percent.

The reason, according to the reports, for the excessively high rate of this loan, is the fact that it is more or less a gamble on the part of the Chinese Banks whether or not the funds will be turned over to them every month from the Salt Surplus. It is pointed out that the Foreign Inspectorate is dependent upon the orders of the Ministry of Finance to turn this money over to the Banks, and that in case there should be a change of government which would bring a new political group into power the failure of the Ministry of Finance to issue orders to turn over the money, would mean the failure of the banks to receive the money.

GOVT. IN HARD LINES

Under the present arrangement, however, if it is adhered to the letter, it is said that the new loan will have the first lien on the salt surplus whatever it amounts to. This means that the vast number of the so-called unauthorised loans on the salt surplus, that apparently have no order on the books of the Ministry of Finance, will be left out in the cold by the Government in making its payments. What they will do in this case is as yet unknown, as it is believed that they do not as yet realise the situation.

At least it indicates that the Government is in a very difficult position, in having to borrow money at such terms as this, which will it is said in foreign circles cause the small banks to shut down on any loans to the Government after the Chinese New Year, and will dispel the magnetic power of the "Salt Surplus" as a bait for lenders. It is said, also, that this action on the part of the two Government banks may mean that they will be faced by a combination of the smaller Chinese banks who are playing the losing hand.

The Government, it is felt, is slowly but surely cutting itself off from supplies of ready cash, and this action toward the smaller banks seems to be simply one more step.

JAP TREACHERY SAY AMUR FOLK OF WHITE FORAY

(Dalta News Agency)

Chita, Jan. 19.—A message from Blagoveschensk states that according to the members of the Amur Provincial Administration, who have just completed a trip over the Zavitoi and Zeya districts, the peasants of the Amur province regard the Merkuloff offensive as a treacherous act against the Russian people on the part of the Japanese.

The peasants are helping the forces of the Government to their utmost through the village committees elected by them. There has been no case where the peasants have tried to evade the special war tax in kind. On the contrary, they give more than they are asked to give. The village of Baharevo, instead of 3 poods of hay from each farm in the village, has taken to the front one load (about 20 poods) of hay from each farm. The "Army Day" in the Zeya gold mines realised six poods of gold.

At a conference of transport workers in Blagoveschensk, a resolution expressing their indignation at the behavior of the Japanese Command in the renewed civil strife was adopted. The transport workers declare their readiness to proceed to the front at the first call of the Government. A similar resolution was adopted by the Third Conference of Building Trade Unions in the city of Svobodni, Amur province.

New Year Football Card Lists Two Classy Games

Engineers' Cup And Internat'l First Round Play Should Please The Fans

The Chinese New Year football matches, which for the most part have been held open, include one match of exceptionable football interest: the play for the Marine Engineers Cup, between the Engineers and the Football Club, on the latter's field on Saturday, to be followed on Monday by the first round of the International Cup, with England and Scotland opposed. One second division match also is scheduled for Saturday, that postponed from January 14, between the Rangers and the Portuguese.

The football fixtures formerly scheduled for Saturday was the first round of the International Cup, but the Marine Engineers Cup, postponed from January 2, was substituted in its place, and the International cup play set to fill Monday's open date. On Tuesday the Race Course will be closed to Football all day owing to the playing for the championship of the Shanghai Golf Club.

The Engineers' cup will see a hard fought battle. The two teams are now leading the first division of the football league, the Club first with 17 points and the Engineers second with but two points less—15. The teams met on Boxer Day for the Marine Engineers Charity Cup, and the Engineers won out by a score of 2-1. The Club, however, is confident of turning the tables Saturday, and many Soccer fans rate them as the winners.

The Portuguese—Rangers match in the second division on the Polo Ground Saturday, cannot have so much interest to the spectator. It is expected beforehand that the Rangers will win, though even should they lose standings in the second division cannot be affected. The Portuguese now are credited with one win and eight loses, for a total of two points, while the Rangers are high up in the table with five wins and three loses and one tie, for a total of points of 11. Their nearest competitors are the Recs 2nd, which have but 8 points. Standings cannot be affected.

For the International Cup first round on Monday only three elevens are entered, England, Scotland and Portugal. The draw, which took place yesterday at noon resulted in a match between England and Scotland for the first Round to be played on Monday, on the Police Ground at 3 o'clock, the winners to qualify to meet Portugal in the final on February 11.

SHANGHAI RUGBY TEAM SELECTED FOR INTERPORT

Leave For Hankow Friday With Hockey Men, Confident Of Victories

Shanghai sportsmen invade Hankow, leaving here on Friday, with a Rugby team numbering fifteen, and a hockey eleven both selected from Shanghai's best, to do or die for China's premier port.

The teams were announced last night.

The Rugby selections are: Messrs R. B. Gotch, F. L. Wainwright, H. W. P. McMeekin, W. Webster, A. E. Seddon, Rev. C. E. Spencer (Capt.), M. E. Columbine, S. H. Lewis (Vice Capt.), R. Miller, A. Hutchison, H. L. Gibson, H. E. D. Adams, J. Snodgrass, J. R. Harder, and G. S. H. Bichard or A. Jenkinson.

The Hockey team is composed of Messrs. Gotch, Wainwright, McMeekin, Seddon, Rev. Spencer, Messrs. Reece, Cobb, Gibson, Harvie, Brown and Jones or Tilly.

The Rugby team entrains to Nanking where, on the 30th they embark on a river steamer for Hankow; the match is set for Tuesday. They will leave the river port on February 3 arriving by train from Nanking February 5. The hockey men leave Shanghai Thursday arriving at Hankow one day after the Rugby men.

The Rugby team as finally selected is classed by rugby men as being as good as Shanghai might possibly get together at this time. Local men are confident that they will turn the tables on Hankow after the river port's win of last year.

The Hockey men, while they have not played much together this year are all good men at the game and may be counted upon to give a good account of themselves. Shanghai won the hockey interport with Hankow last year, and this year's team are confident of repeating the trick.

Hong Five Have But One More Chance To Stay At Top; Tomorrow Will Tell

Basketball suffered an upset last night.

The American Trading Company, counted upon by many to be in the fighting with the Bearcats and the Strokeside for first and second place honors, were defeated by the Shanghai College faculty by a score of 43-42.

The Hong were beaten by Poteat, a new arrival for the college faculty, who played at forward and counted up no less than 20 points for his team. Hong added six and Andersen from center five more.

Amtraco had no alibi. Tinkham, due to his delayed departure for the north played his usual star game for them; Kline was back in the game after-a-few weeks' injury to his leg; and the rest of their team was from their first line.

RUSSIA INVITED TO ATTEND THE GENOA PARLEY

(Rosta News Agency)

Moscow, Jan. 18.—The People's Commissar of Foreign Affairs has received the following note from the Italian Government inviting Russia to participate in the Genoa Conference:

"According to the resolution of the Supreme Council, an economic-financial conference is called in Italy in March, where all the Governments of Europe will participate. The Italian Government, in conjunction with the Government of Great Britain, considers that the participation of Russia in this conference will greatly facilitate the solution of the question of economic equilibrium of Europe.

"The Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Government of Italy request the Russian Government to inform it as speedily as possible whether Russia wishes to participate in the Conference."

To this invitation Mr. Chicherin, the Commissar of Foreign Affairs of Soviet Russia, has sent the following answer to the Supreme Council at Cannes:

"The Russian Government accepts with pleasure the invitation to the European Conference called for March. The appointment of the Russian delegation will be preceded by an extraordinary session of the All-Russian Central Executive Committee, which will invest the delegation with the fullest power of decision.

"Even in case Mr. Lenin, Chairman of the Council of Commissars, owing to the pressure of work especially in connection with the famine, should be prevented from leaving Russia, the personnel of the delegation with the wide scope of its power will give it an authority not inferior to that which may contain Mr. Lenin."

PRAISE LENIN'S STAND

A telegram from London says that all London papers discuss the telegram from the Supreme Council at Cannes stating that it has received the answer of the Soviet Government accepting the invitation to the Genoa Conference. According to the papers, the Soviet Government's reply has pleased the Council. The Daily Chronicle says:

"The consent of Mr. Lenin has created a very nice impression, as it was rumored here that Russia might take an irreconcilable stand."

Mr. Loucher, in the Manchester Guardian, regards the acceptance of the invitation to the Genoa Conference as the recognition of the Supreme Council by the Soviet Government.

"Although we have not recognised yet the Soviet Government, at least it has recognised the Supreme Council."

In connection with the convocation of the Genoa Conference, the Courriere de la Serra, organ of the Milan manufacturers, says:

"Though the invitation of the defeated, neutrals and Russia to the Genoa Conference by the conquerors does not mean yet an end of all the evils, still it is a confession that there is no way to save the economic ruin of Europe but by general co-operation. The Versailles Conference did not want to recognise this principle, but now it is recognised at the Cannes Conference."

GENOA AGENDA FIXED

(Special To The China Press)

Paris, Jan. 22.—L'Eclair publishes today what it declares to be the authoritative text of the agenda for the Genoa Conference. It states that the agenda was agreed upon at Cannes. The main points of the agenda are:

1.—Practical examination of the principles enunciated in the Cannes resolutions.

2.—The establishment of peace in Europe on a firm basis.

3.—Measures necessary for restoration of international confidence, without, however, imperilling existing treaties.

4.—Financial matters.

5.—Technical measures for reconstruction.

6.—Transportation of goods.

7.—L'Eclair also points out that a memorandum was signed at Cannes in which Mr. Lloyd George agreed that reparations composed a question which the Allies, and no one else, had a right to settle.

At the regular meeting of the American Cabinet today question of America's participation in the Genoa Conference will come under consideration. Secretary of State Hughes will submit to his colleagues the reports which he has received from Ambassadors Myron T. Herrick and Colonel Harvey and will then give his opinion which it is believed will be in favor of America attending the Conference, provided certain American conditions are accepted by the Powers.

It is not, however, probable that the definite decision of the American Government will be made known before next week. The Matin learns from Italy that the reserved attitude of America towards the Genoa Conference is causing some anxiety in Italian political circles, as without America's participation the Conference would have to work without any assurance of achieving definite results.

The German Government has officially accepted the invitation of the Italian Government to attend the Genoa Conference.

NO PROPAGANDA, BUT TRADE

Moscow, Jan. 23.—M. Tchitcherin in a statement issued today denied that the Soviet planned to go to the economic meeting at Genoa for the purpose of spreading Soviet propaganda.

"We shall fight for commercial development," he said.

NOTES TO GUARD PORTUGUESE AND DUTCH COLONIES

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 23.—It is reported from Washington that Holland and Portugal, having drawn the attention of the Conference to the fact that their Far Eastern possessions were unprotected in the Four Power Treaty, it was first proposed that this should be corrected by a separate treaty or by an annexe to another treaty, but it has now been decided that they can be safeguarded by an exchange of identity notes.

Shantung Fund Brings Offers Of Many To Aid

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Jan. 21.—In connection with the Government's proposal to redeem the Shantung Railway with Chinese funds, as outlined in the Premier's telegram to the provinces, numerous public bodies have telegraphed to the Government undertaking to support the scheme to the extent of their power. The Shantung Provincial Assembly has resolved to send a delegation to Peking to discuss details of the scheme.

Bond Payments To France Opposed

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Jan. 23.—Replying to numerous inquiries with regard to Chinese finances in connection with the Bank Industrielle de Chine, M. Lasteyrie, the Minister of Finance stated that the Chinese Government up to the present had opposed the repayment of the six percent bonds of 1913 despite the frequent intervention of the French Government. Fresh steps, he added, were being taken in this connection. There is no question of a Chinese loan in France being prepared.

night's defeat, though they still retain third place. They stand now with but .674 percent, as compared to the Strokeside's 900, and the Bearcats 1,000. Meeting the winning Bearcats tomorrow, there is a good chance that they will be eliminated from the championship running unless they buck up more than a hundred percent over night.

PLAY IN THE CITY

In the City, the Public School lost to the Bearcats, and, incidentally lost their fourth position in the standings. The score was 64-25. Irle and Gray for the Bearcats formed the usual combination which won the game. The pair between them shot 23 baskets. Pettit substituting Roxburgh at forward did well with his 6 baskets, and Geldhart, in place of Hirsh who is taking the Nanyang football, Basketball and volley ball team on the Northern tour, also did his bit. Levis, the School's dependable forward did nothing much in the first half but came through in the last period with six baskets.

Tomorrow's games are scheduled on the "Y" floor between the American School and the "Y" commencing at 8 o'clock, and the American Trading Co., and the Bearcats at 9:15. The latter game will be the deciding match for the Hong team. Should they lose, their chances for first or second honors are ended; should they win, they will drag the Bearcats down from their 1,000 percent position to a place where they will be within reaching distance for the basketball title.

Last night's scores follow:

Leicester Freed On Fraud Charges

G. B. Leicester, who was accused on several counts of fraud in connection with the Far Eastern Steamship Navigation Co., Ltd., was acquitted yesterday in the British Supreme court.

The principal charge against Leicester was that he had obtained money from several Chinese through misrepresenting the status of the steamship company. He was accused of "selling jobs" on steamships that did not exist.

Counsel for Leicester contended that he was himself a victim of misrepresentation, as he believed the steamship company to be a going concern. He admitted employing Chinese to work for the firm, but denied accepting money from them. He acted, he said, in what he thought was the best interest of his employers, who were Chinese. He became suspicious of the firm, he said, when a check was dishonored. Leicester said he had received no salary for the work he had done, and that on December 18 he left the company to accept work on a steamship lying in the river. He did not know until after he had accepted this job that a warrant had been issued for him.

The case was tried before a jury.

Explanation Is Given For Failure Of Lights

The serious interruption of the supply of electricity throughout the system which occurred at 1 p.m. January 19 was caused by No. 8—18,000 K. W. machine tripping out while on full load according to an explanation made by the Municipal Electricity Department. The machine had been running since early morning and there were no indications of anything being wrong, but towards 9 o'clock in the evening it was noticed by the operating engineers that the machine was vibrating considerably, and as this machine normally runs in perfect balance and without vibration, it was decided to transfer some of its load on to the other machines which were running. The load on No. 8 machine was therefore reduced as arranged, but in the meantime the vibration increased, and it was decided, for the safety of the machine, to immediately switch it out of service. As a result, the voltage on the system dropped to zero, and the auxiliary plant in the Power Station shut down. This stoppage of auxiliary plant has happened before, and until the auxiliary supply can be derived from an independent source, such as from the two house turbines which will shortly be installed delay may take place in re-starting the plant and so restoring the full service. It might be mentioned that although the new house turbines, which form part of the extensions scheme cannot be in operation for several months, steps have been taken and are practically complete, for utilising two of the 2,000 K.W. machines for giving an independent supply for the power house auxiliaries, and these machines will be supplying power within a week.

By maintaining an independent auxiliary supply in the power house the restoration of the service will be effected very much quicker than is possible under the conditions which have obtained until now. In laying out the extension scheme two years ago, full provision was made to reduce the dislocation of service due to temporary failures of any section of the plant, but until the extensions are completed the full benefit of these arrangements will not be felt.

CONDITIONS ADVERSE

The obligation to consumors and the public which the Electricity Department owes is very fully appreciated, but it may, in fairness, be explained that the conditions under which the power house is operating are still adverse. At the present time excavations are being prepared for the foundations of the two 20,000 K.W. machines which are now building in England, and also for the new switch and transformer house, and in order to carry out this work it is necessary that the North end of the turbine room should be kept open. The adverse conditions due to the temporary opening of the North end of the turbine room have been exaggerated by the extreme cold experienced during the past few days, and it has been quite impossible to keep the temperature of the turbine room much above the temperature prevailing outside.

The exact cause of the failure of the No. 8 machine is a controversial one, but the theory is held that it may be due to two causes, firstly the extremely high vacuum which was being maintained at the time the shut down occurred, and secondly the very low temperature of the turbine room may have caused a slight distortion of the turbine itself. In these very large turbines there is an enormous amount of metal, and while at the high pressure end the temperature of the turbine is very high, at the low pressure end the temperature is correspondingly low. It is thought that the low temperature, due to the opening at the north end of the turbine room, and the gusts of cold wind circulating in the turbine room may have caused uneven expansion of the turbine casing, which, in turn, may have temporarily distorted the casing. If this were so it would be sufficient to set up vibration. It is significant that this machine was running perfectly satisfactorily all day, and that when the shut down occurred the temperature in the turbine room was lower than it had been at any time during the previous twelve hours.

COLD AFFECTS MACHINE

Early in the morning of the 19th there was a partial shut down of the system caused by No. 9, 18,000 K.W. machine, switching out. This shut down was directly traceable to the adverse climatic conditions prevailing in the turbine room. On all large generators air washers are fitted, the function of which is to wash or filter, the cooling air before it enters the generator. This is in accordance with modern practice, and is designed to prevent an accumulation of dirt on the windings and interior of the turbine. Owing to the low temperature, a film of ice formed over the air inlets of the air washer, with the result that the easy ingress of the air through the usual channels was prevented. The suction of the fans of the generator was sufficient to draw up water from the sealing trough at the bottom of the air washer and carried over a volume of water into the air ducts which saturated the high pressure terminals where the connections are made from the generator to the cables leading to the switchgear. The volume of water which accumulated on these connections broke down the insulation, and caused a flash over between phases. This caused a short circuit which brought the automatic switchgear into play and cut the machine off from the system. No damage was done to the machine beyond the breakage of the porcelain insulators. These were replaced during the day, and the machine was ready for service by about 7 o'clock in the evening. This partial interruption of the supply in the morning only lasted for half an hour, but it did not affect the entire system.

The interruptions which occurred to the service on Thursday were not serious in the sense that any material damage was done to the plant, they were, however, extremely serious to consumers, inasmuch as any curtailment or stoppage of a public utility affects the whole city. The importance of continuity of supply is fully realised by the Department, and its endeavors are constantly directed towards that end. It may be definitely stated, however, that the conditions under which the power house is being operated at the present time are mainly responsible for the unfortunate dislocation of the service which occurred on Thursday.

It may not be fully appreciated that extensions such as are being carried out at Riverside to meet the increased demands for electricity in Shanghai cannot be executed without a certain amount of derangement of operating conditions. Extensions of this magnitude take a long time to complete, and while it has, on more than one occasion, been stated that when the new plant is installed the chances of failure of supply will be considerably lessened, it should be borne in mind that during the transition period difficulties have to be faced which in normal circumstances would not arise.

It has been a source of great satisfaction and help to the Department in the past to know that those consumers most seriously affected by failures have been, without exception, sympathetic and fully alive to the difficulties and disabilities with which the Department has had to contend.

A vitally interesting story which deals with a young mining engineer who discovers a rich vein of copper on his claim; an unscrupulous railroad magnate who tries to gain control of it; and a charming and beautiful girl who plots with the hero to their mutual satisfaction against the villain.

Jack Kerrigan, the popular American star has never been seen in a more lovable role than this, where he wins both riches and a beauty.

French Chamber Approves Premier Poincare's Policy

(Special To The China Press)

Paris, Jan. 20.—Following M. Poincare's declaration of policy before the Chamber of Deputies yesterday the Chamber passed a vote of confidence in the Government by 434 to 84.

M. Briand interrupted M. Poincare at one point in his statement to say that the Cannes Conference had agreed unanimously that Germany should not be permitted to discuss either the Treaty of Versailles or the reparations question at the Conference of Genoa.

In discussing Anglo-French relations M. Poincare affirmed that it was the intention of both his Cabinet and the British Government to dissipate misunderstandings that had been created between the two countries. The Anglo-French Pact ought not to be designed to further the interests of one Power alone; and it might well be that France and Belgium, at their post of honor, would have to defend the liberty of England at their own risk.

M. Herriot, the leader of the Radical and Socialist groups, said, in replying to the Poincare statement, that he agreed with the new Government on many points in its foreign policy. Indeed, the Government's program corresponded so well with the wishes of the Chamber that an immense majority approved it. Thus it only remained for M. Poincare to carry it into effect. France depends upon the firmness and continuity of M. Poincare's policy.

All Paris newspapers this morning express their confidence in the ability of the Poincare Government to meet the problems that confront it, and French press comment on M. Poincare's declaration is universally favorable.

L'Intransigeant states that the Poincare Government will be well received and will strengthen its popularity if it is able, without undue provocation, to show Germany that France is not being fooled by German subterfuge and at the same time make it clear to England that her precious friendship should be manifested in a manner slightly less disconcerting than hitherto.

Belgian, Italian and Turkish comment on the Poincare Government is almost entirely favorable, but the German press in general attacks the Government's statement with much bitterness. The Vorwaerts admits, however, that M. Poincare's statement was moderate in tone and character. The Freiheit recognises that the reconstruction of France's devastated districts is Germany's first duty.

Naturally, however, the majority of the German newspapers are doing their best to make the new Premier of France appear ridiculous and to lend credence to the absurd story that France is trying to strangle Germany. The Deutsche Tageszeitung is the most conspicuous leader of the anti-French press.

Hands Off Aaland Isles Soviets Warn The Powers

(Rosta News Agency)

Moscow, Dec. 18.—The People's Commissariat of Foreign Affairs of Soviet Russia has addressed the following note to the French Premier and to Lord Curzon:

"To its great astonishment the Russian Government has learned from the west European press that a convention was signed in Geneva on October 20 concerning the legal states of the Aaland Islands. On October 2, 1919, the Russian Government stated to the Entente Powers and in the same way to Sweden and Finland that according to the view of the Russian Government the fate of the Aaland Islands could not be fixed without the participation of Russia.

"At the same time the Russian Government raised an energetic protest against the intention of the Entente to claim powers which were absolutely not theirs by any right and to dispose of territory to the exclusion and without the knowledge of the nations interested therein and the working masses.

"On June 28 1920, the Russian Government declared once more that no decision of any kind by the Powers or by any group of Powers, no matter what the decision might be, concerning the Aaland Islands would be recognised as binding by the Russian Government if it had not participated in the negotiations.

"Furthermore, after having recognised the Aaland Islands as a part of the Republic of Finland, the Russian Government repeatedly expressed its view point that no alteration of the legal position of these islands could take place without the co-operation of the Russian Government.

"On July 22, the Russian Government addressed a protest to the Governments of Sweden and Finland in connection with the intention of the Swedish Government to summon a conference for dealing with the neutralising of the Aaland Islands. In this protest the Russian Government expressed its desire that if a new solution concerning the legal status of the Aaland Islands was in view, the rights of Russia should come at once into effect and that no decision affecting the international legal position of the Aaland Islands which was made without the participation of Russia could be rightfully made.

"Therefore the Russian Government declares that decisions of the Powers touching upon the legal status of the Aaland Islands made without the participation and knowledge of Russia, thus including the agreement of October 20, can be considered as a decision which has legal force.

"The Russian Government recognises no decisions which are formulated in this agreement and declares that it is in no way bound by the same and that in certain cases it will accept all the consequences which appear desirable. Neither the decisions which affect the legal boundaries of the zone of the islands nor those which refer to exceptions from these boundaries can be recognised as of legal force by the Russian Government.

"Especially, the Russian Government protests against the reference to the League of Nations of which it recognises no legal functions in the sphere of the Aaland Islands. In its character as a coast Power in the Baltic Sea, Russia considers itself especially affected by any action of a third Power in connection with the legal status of the Aaland Islands.

"The Soviet Government declares once more that in view of the special interest which these islands hold for the working masses of Russia, owing to their geographical situation, it is its unchangeable duty to permit no alteration in the legal status of the Aaland Islands without considering their wishes."

Austrian Money Seeks New Level

(Reuter's Service)

Vienna, Jan. 23.—Foreign currencies rose to an unprecedented height on the Bourse today. The pound sterling was quoted at over 40,000 crowns and the dollar at 10,000. This is probably explained by the continued decrease of public confidence in Austrian money.

Less Wise Than A Hen?

"When the worms are scarce, what does a hen do? Does she stop scratching? She does not. She scratches all the harder. A lot of business men have been showing less sense than a hen since orders became scarce. They have laid off salesmen; then have stopped or reduced their advertising; they have simply resigned themselves to inaction and, of course, to pessimism. If a hen knows enough to scratch all the harder when the worms are scarce, surely business men, who are supposed to possess a moderate amount of brains, ought to have gumption enough to scratch all the harder for business." BRITAIN TO CUT FRENCH DEBT AS AID TO GERMANS

(Special To The China Press)

Berlin, Jan. 19.—The London Daily Mail learns that negotiations will be conducted at the coming Genoa Conference between England and France whereby England will forego one-third of France's debt of £570,000,000 provided France is willing to reduce the German reparations payment by a similar amount.

GERMANY'S ATTITUDE

Berlin, Jan. 19.—The Berliner Zeitung am Mittag writes: Since the Genoa invitation to Germany is not dependent upon any condition, France will be unable to exercise dictatorial influence upon the conference. On the contrary, members will be at full liberty to declare their willingness to partake in Europe's economic consolidation or to withdraw. This course was decided upon despite France's contrary wishes because of the attitude of the American government.

FRANCE IS FRIENDLY

Berlin, Jan. 19.—Premier Poincare of France has wired the Belgian premier that the new French cabinet is inspired by the same friendly feelings toward Belgium which have always existed in France.

The Libre Belgique refers to the difference of opinion between M. Briand and M. Poincare. M. Briand desired general peace in connection with France's rights, while M. Poincare wishes to realise the full terms of the Versailles treaty, being convinced that general peace can arise therefrom only.

Great doubts are prevailing regarding the correctness of M. Poincare's opinion, and it is believed that he has evidently undervalued the important items of economic reality. M. Poincare will not be able to carry out as a state minister what he promised as a publicist.

Berlin, Jan. 19.—The Italian government has appointed a committee under the chairmanship of the Premier with authority to prepare details for the Genoa conference.

Peking To Have Technical Experts

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Jan. 21.—Mr. Kao Ling-wei, Acting in his capacity as Director of the Metropolitan Area, has advised the President that notwithstanding the high rate of salaries technical experts should be employed by the Government for improvement of the public services in Peking. This proposal has been approved by the President.

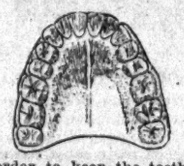
KINGMAN & BROS.

How to Preserve the Teeth



In order to keep the teeth in a good condition scientific precaution must be taken. Through negligence, decay and numerous other affections such as tooth-ache, dental periostitis, esteo-periostitis, necrosis of the jaw, etc., may arise. During the process of ingestion, there are settled on the teeth some deposits of mineral and organic matters, called tartar, which possesses a morbid power of pressing the gum. As an inevitable result of the presence of this tartar, the teeth will become elongated and movable and will, by degrees, absorb away the enamel, leading ultimately to the decay and degeneration of the teeth. The tartar is so hard and resistant to the process of brushing that it cannot be scraped off except with dental instruments specially devised for that purpose.

Dr. KINGMAN offers to the public his service for preserving their teeth at an annual subscription Fee of $10.00 per head to be paid in advance.

The work to be done by Dr. KINGMAN to the subscribers consist in:—

(1) Cleaning of the teeth quarterly.
(2) Filling with gold platinum alloy only, when the teeth present holes.
(3) Inspecting the teeth at any time at the desire of the subscribers.

WEST COAST TO POOL SHIPS FOR PACIFIC TRADE

(Special To The China Press)

San Francisco, Jan. 23.—Representatives of the Pacific Coast Chambers of Commerce, meeting here today, agreed to form a shipping pool for the operation of a fleet of vessels in the Transpacific service.

Herbert Fleishacker, who has been active in the movement, was authorised to go to Washington and learn what shipping board vessels would be sold to the combine and on what terms. It was said that should the Shipping Board agree to the plan, it would result in practically a combine of the American mercantile marine on the Pacific under private ownership.

The conference received a telegram from Chairman Albert D. Lasker of the Shipping Board saying that the board believes that a company in which all of the Pacific Coast of America alone is represented, can offer a strong front such as is necessary to promote control of the Pacific. He said that President Harding had approved the idea.

Banzai Merely Called On Liang Officials Assert

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Jan. 21.—With reference to reports that have appeared in the Chinese press to the effect that an important private discussion recently took place between Premier Liang and General Banzai, Reuter is officially informed that since his appointment as Premier Mr. Liang Shih-yi has only met General Banzai once.

That was when the latter, as an official in the employment of the Chinese Government, visited the Premier to offer his congratulations, which is the customary procedure. General Banzai briefly congratulated the Premier and took his departure within a few minutes. Several secretaries of the Cabinet were present throughout the interview, during which there was no discussion, secret or otherwise, on political, state or international affairs.

The Late Viscount Bryce—An Appreciation

(Contributed)

GREAT Britain has lost one of its distinguished citizens and America a sincere friend and warm admirer of its constitution. The late Viscount Bryce was not what might be called a brilliant politician though he attained to Cabinet rank when the party to which he was devotedly attached was called upon to undertake responsibility for the administration of the country's affairs. He made his mark in the British House of Commons and his tenure of the important offices he held as a Cabinet Minister demonstrated that he possessed more than the average administrative ability, but it was a happy choice which enabled him to occupy the highest position in the Diplomatic Service of his country.

Great Britain has been extremely fortunate in the men she has sent to represent her at Washington. With but few exceptions all of them have been distinguished for learning, erudition and scholarship. Successive Governments at Westminster have long realised that America should only have of the best of Great Britain's Ambassadors and the post there has been recognised as the doyen of the Empire's ambassadorial offices. His time at Washington was marked by an improvement in Anglo-American relationships and it was due to his splendid work for the Empire, as well as to the goodwill of American statesmen with whom he was in such close contact, that Anglo-American friendship ripened as it did. Viscount Bryce's stay in Washington paved the way for the close co-operation in the late war which was so marked a feature of its successful prosecution after the United States entered it as belligerent. The deceased Viscount was instrumental in bringing home to his own countrymen the realisation that co-operation between the English-speaking peoples was a policy calculated to achieve more success than a continuance of mistrust, envy and suspicion, and he worked whole-heartedly to draw the two nations together in friendship. A great measure of success attended his efforts as subsequent happenings proved.

In addition to instructing his own countrymen about America's ideals and its unique democratic constitution, he also interpreted aright to the people amongst whom he lived and whom he admired with such ardour, the good points of his own nation and with the hearty reciprocity of the United States Government in this matter, an era of better relationships between the two big nations was established. Viscount Bryce deserves to be honored as the distinguished citizen of Great Britain that he was, for the able manner in which he carried out so successfully the multifarious duties which befall the Empire's ambassador at Washington. They earned for him the admiration of the people of the United States and the undying gratitude of his own Government. So excellently had he filled the high office that it made it extremely difficult for the British Cabinet to discover a worthy successor who should be able to continue the fine work carried out by the deceased Viscount.

But, despite his successes as a politician and an Ambassador in the highest of his country's ambassadorial offices, his name will be handed down to posterity primarily for the production of what must be regarded as the most lucid statement on the American system of Government. It is amazing to one who has travelled to discover how very ignorant the world and democracy are on the subject of America's constitution. This is probably due to the lack that there indeed was of any books which gave in concise and clear form an accurate account of the governmental system of the American Republic. There were numerous works in circulation but they were either too abstruse for the average foreigner to comprehend or only suitable for those who were inclined for close study of the subject. Viscount Bryce's excellent book met a long felt need and no-where has the book "The American Commonwealth" been more warmly received and widely used than in America itself. In endeavoring to understand the democratic constitution of the American Government nothing finer could be used than Viscount Bryce's able book. It is indeed a master-piece, revealing the writer's grip of the subject on which he wrote with such lucidity and authority. None but a student and an ardent admirer of the constitution by which the Republic of America is governed could have produced such a work. It ought to be found in the class rooms of all the big schools and colleges of every democratic country. No library is complete without it. It is an everlasting monument to the unchallenged ability and knowledge of Viscount Bryce. The world today is the poorer for his removal. He served his day and generation faithfully and he leaves behind him a record for service and accomplishment that it is well to try and emulate. While occupying positions of responsibility inside the Cabinet and out of it, he endeavored to discharge his duties with a due sense of the paramount importance of righteousness, equity and truth. He may not have been indispensable, but his removal leaves a gap, like his resignation of the Ambassadorship of the United States did, insuperably difficult to fill. He helped to teach Great Britain that America, as well as she, had had handed down to them as a sacred heritage to be maintained, the liberties upon which their respective constitutions were founded and he felt that

"Both must be free or die, who spake the tongue
That Shakespeare spake; the faith and morals hold
Which Milton held."

America's Prosperity And Foreign Trade

America's industrial progress is inextricably linked with her foreign trade and it is impossible for the United States to achieve its pre-war prosperity by a revival of domestic business alone, Dr. Henry A. E. Chandler, economic business alone, Dr. Henry A. E. Chandler, economist of the National Bank of Commerce in New York, says.

Dr. Chandler takes issue with those who believe that, since foreign trade represents not more than 10 to 15 percent of America's total commerce, the loss of a part of it would leave a sufficient percentage of the whole to insure reasonable prosperity. In the January number of the bank's magazine, Commerce Monthly, he points out that economic investigation proves that "even during periods of depression, volume of national business, after allowing for price changes, seldom departs from normal by more than 15 percent, and often by smaller percentages; and a seemingly small reduction in the percentage of gross business may have great significance when translated into terms of net profits and thus into final buying capacity.

REDUCTION OF OUTPUT

"In view of the decline in foreign buying capacity it has been suggested that we may have to reduce our output to conform much more nearly to domestic demand and thus in the future prevent the accumulation of surpluses similar to those that have so recently demoralised some of our principal markets," he continues. "Undoubtedly such a reduction can be effected in part and indeed, to some extent, has already been done, but as a practical movement upon a large scale it is beset with great difficulties.

"If, for example, we lose only 5 percent of our total national business through the reduction in our foreign trade it does not mean that each industry loses only 5 percent. The relative importance of foreign trade varies widely as between different industries. In some the proportion of foreign to total trade is insignificant while in others it is as high as one-third or nearly one-half. It is possible, therefore, that a reduction in foreign trade amounting to no more than 5 percent of our total trade, may so effectively cripple some of our basic industries as to wipe out all profits and even to bring heavy losses.

MAKING READJUSTMENTS

"Our domestic trade will, of course, continue to be of much the larger importance in our economic life, and even if international economic affairs should remain in a highly unsettled condition we would, undoubtedly, make important substitutions ond readjustments within our own territory that would contribute to the relief of our domestic business situation. Such readjustments are in part already under way. Indeed it is not at all clear that the uncertainty as to the international situation is an unmixed evil. In forcing us to look more closely for possible readjustments at home, consequent efficiency may, in the end, bring us some lasting benefits.

"On the other hand we must not overlook the fact that readjustments leading to increased efficiency may still leave in important cases a productive capacity in excess of domestic demands. Under those conditions individual producers cannot be expected to reduce their output simply because there exists an excess in the aggregate, at least not until they have been convinced that they may not capture a larger proportion of the home trade than they have heretofore obtained. Those who are familiar with the history of the destructive competition among railroads and industrial plants that led to the formation of the pools, the trusts and other forms of combinations between 1870 and 1900 will not have difficulty in visualising what would happen if individual producers should all start out to capture a larger share of a domestic trade that in the aggregate is insufficient for them all.

PRICE CONTROL NOT ENOUGH

"It is true that a radical amendment of our anti-trust acts might render possible price-controlling agreements that would lessen the destructive effects of competition. Such arrangements, however, would still leave the problem of surplus products partly unsolved. Moreover, the problem of amending our present laws, with a view to maintaining a wholesome degree of competition and preventing unreasonable price fixing without imposing upon business men great uncertainty as to what could be legally done, is extraordinarily difficult. As a practical matter, therefore, unless we are to face the possibility of an industrial competition of an intensity hitherto unknown—that indeed may dissipate part of our productive energy—we must recover in the foreign field sufficient trade to carry off the output of our surplus productive capacity.

"It may appear the easiest way in our present dilemma to let international traders take their natural course and to concentrate upon the home market. It may be well doubted, however, that the final cost of such a course in money and energy will be less to the nation than a course that would call for our active cooperation in the international economic and financial reconstruction that is necessary to a recovery of the buying capacity of the rest of the world. In any event the policies of hermit nations do not lead into the path of progress. Large industrial nations will continue to have political and, in some cases, even racial boundaries, but they can no longer have economic boundaries. Economic units and the forces that control their actions are now world-wide. Moreover, the resumption of our prewar prosperity and the continuance of our normal growth involve an ever-increasing dependence upon international conditions. The whole course of our future economic development, therefore, lies clearly in the direction of a larger co-operation in international economic activities."

Unusual Glimpses Of Europe And Its People

London, December 11.—Reports from Zermatt indicate that there still is hope that special searching parties will find the body of Lord Frederick Douglas, who was lost in the Swiss Alps in July, 1865, during the first ascent to the Matterhorn.

Due to an extensive hot summer in Switzerland this year and subsequent drought, the Alps are giving up their dead. Bodies of adventurous climbers who have succumbed on the great glaciers and snow fields to remain indefinitely frozen and preserved have been found as the result of the extraordinary melting which has followed this summer.

Eighteen years ago Joseph Tresch, a famous guide, fell to death in the Gotthard range, on the slopes of the Kliserstock. His recognisable corpse was found a short time ago. Another body, lost seven years, also has been recovered in the Piz Languard range. These and other occurrences have caused those interested to redouble their efforts to find the corpse of Lord Frederick Douglas. It is assumed from records of Whymper's first climb to the summit of the Matterhorn that he fell some six thousand feet to the glacier below. The bodies of the Rev. Charles Hudson, a guide and another member of the Whymper expedition were recovered fifty-six years ago.

Not only the Swiss Alps, but the French Alps and the Tyrol have been giving up their dead this autumn and winter. If the winter develops as snowless as Alpine guides and weather sharps believe it will, it is forecast as possible by next summer to recover the remains of hundreds who have died in these mountains.

Normally the Alps are covered with heavy snows at this time of year. So far the snowfall has been exceedingly powdery and light, all of which indicates that the year will be one of continued light snowfall, with consequently a deeper melting in the spring, bringing to light corpses refrigerated in the crevices for decades.

HIS BODY GUARDS GOLD MINE HE SOUGHT THROUGH LIFE

The story of a life-long search for a lost gold mine and of the death of the aged discoverer in his hour of triumph is described in a message from Innsbruck.

In Salzburg many years ago a man lay on his death bed. His son, Joseph Fliesser, was with him, and just before his father's death he was told of a lost gold mine, somewhere in the Tyrolese Mountains. On the death of his father Fliesser devoted himself to a systematic search of the long chain of the Tyrolese, and so continued for forty years, until every crag became familiar to him. Two weeks ago, however, the people of the small village of Admonti, near the Sparafeld range, were startled by the sudden appearance among them of a ragged unkempt old man who cried, "I have found gold."

Fliesser was warned that it was dangerous to attempt an ascent at this time of the year, but he took no notice and insisted on setting off alone. He was letting himself over the edge of a precipice down to a projecting ledge, where he had located a paying streak of gold, when the rope holding him snapped and the old man fell 180 feet, breaking his neck. His body now lies guarding the treasure for which he gave his life.

NEW CAREERS FOR WOMEN ARE DISCLOSED IN LONDON

In London there is an Efficiency Club which is a meeting ground for women of responsibility and experience in business and the professions. At a meeting this week two unusual careers were described to the members by the two women who had attained proficiency in them. They were a fungi expert and a universal aunt.

The fungi expert, a Miss Wakefield, is in charge of the Mycological Department at Kew Gardens, a department concerning itself with fungi. Miss Wakefield had a university training in science followed by specilisation at one of the research stations and fungi were studied scientifically because of their relation to plant diseases. (In 1915 England lost 10 percent of her wheat crop through yellow rust.) Miss Wakefield has examined and named fungi from all over the world. She has discovered that rubber diseases occuring in the East are the same as those known in the West Indies; hitherto they have always been believed to be different.

The universal aunt is a member of an organisation which undertakes to do almost anything a reasonable being could wish to have done. Their activities include choosing cretonnes, arranging bridge fours, collecting and organising for bazaars and telling stories at children's parties. This member mentioned that her last job had been choosing and dispatching Christmas presents for sixty children in Basutoland. So far there have been only two things which she refused to do. One was arranging a marriage and the other providing a dancing partner.

Unusual Glimpses Of Europe And Its People

League of Health, and part of the entertainment will be a dress pageant. One of the dresses is a Medici gown with a 13-inch waist, for in the times of the Medici 13 inches was the standard measurement for a woman's waist. Accordingly the organiser of the matinee issued a request for the services of a woman who could wear the dress. He received applicants from all parts of the country, but the majority of those who volunteered had waists of at least 18 inches. Mr. Foster was in despair until recently, when a London girl, Miss Kavanagh, called at his office. She is eighteen, tall, well-proportioned and good looking and her waist is 15 inches in circumference. She declared she could make it 13 inches easily and so squeeze into the gown. Mr. Foster is not entirely satisfied. "The waist we wanted," he said to a reporter, "was the size of the span of my hands. Women's waists are larger than they used to be. Games have developed them. It's a cruel truth, but I believe we shall have to be satisfied with one of 15 inches."

Apparently the wasp-waist woman is dead.

BLACK CATS WERE BRANDED AS AGENTS OF DEVIL IN 1001

The secret of the black cat in all his deviltry is now discovered. Cats of any color were taboo as agents of the Devil in the year 1001, in the Sevennes Mountains of France, a part of old Aquitania, where an extra special aversion to cat influence still exists.

Antiquarians believe that the world's present day fear of coal black pussies, who insist on crossing paths at night, dates from the Devil's Bridge, near Montpellier, which structure is now nearing the ten century mark.

The antiquarians, in looking over this ancient bridge recently, rediscovered nine hundred years of legend, which probably explain the origin of the malign influence so universally attributed to the dusky feline—as well as Halloween decorations portraying black cats, witches and the Devil on terms of amity.

The Sevennes Mountaineers have accepted the deviltry of the cat since the Pont du Diable (Devil's Bridge) was built across the River Herault, by William, a relative of Charlemagne.

William, crusader and noted warrior, who had become first a monk and then the abbot of a monastery beside the River Herault, decided to build a bridge across this swift mountain stream. As fast as he put down the foundation stones of the arches they were swept away by the current. He persisted a long time without success, the legend says, and then gave up in despair, for he was convinced that this continual destruction of his enterprise was the work of the Devil. He is supposed to have convoked man's enemy and made a compact with him, whereby if the Devil would permit the abbot to complete his bridge, the first animal that crossed it would belong to His Satanic Majesty. An unsuspecting tabby was the first to pass and promptly became the Devil's property. Consequently people considered every cat as the agent of the Devil and the superstition became so strong in those days that it has left a permanent mark on the following generations. The bridge was completed in 1001 and has ever since been known as the Pont du Diable.

LANGUAGE OF ZULU NATIONS TRANSLATED IN SHORTHAND

A novel experiment has just been made by the staff of the phonetics department at the University College of London. For the first time in phonetic history Zulu, the language of the natives of the Transvaal, has been translated into shorthand. The experiment was not, however, an unqualified success.

An African gentleman, J. L. Dube, who is a schoolmaster in Natal, spoke in Zulu, and the staff of the department took down the sounds in phonetic script and then endeavored to transcribe them as they had written them. Three of the four persons engaged had never before heard Zulu spoken. To an outsider the sound resembled nothing so much as a saw forcing its way through a stubborn piece of wood, though it was a trifle more liquid.

Although Professor Jones, conducting the experiment, was not satisfied, Mr. Dube, on the whole, was pleased with the effect. An Englishman who owns a farm in South Africa was present, and he said: "I shut my eyes and as I heard you reading out the dictation it was just like leaning on the fence of one's homestead and hearing the 'boys' making their first attempt to read Zulu."

The professor could not make out how the sounds were produced. "They aren't lateral at all," he said. "We shall have to take Mr. Dube to the phonetics laboratory and use our apparatus to put us on the right line of discovery."

Mr. Lloyd James, head of the department, has been studying the Zulu languages for some time. He says that the University College is extending its analyses of the languages of all parts of the world, and that the research will some day be invaluable to British commercial enterprise. Hitherto Germany has been the only other place where this has been done, and there it has been carried on rather badly, and mainly with the object of assisting commercial men to open up a new trade. But now the British are beating the Germans in languages.

Sun, Earth And Time -:- By Garrett P. Serviss

"Is there any change in time in crossing the equator? For instance, if you approach the equator from the north on any day at 1 o'clock, what day and what time of day would it be immediately after crossing? Thank you for any information."

There would be no change. The time of day is the same on the same meridian, from pole to pole, because the meridians run north and south, and the sun, whose apparent progress through the sky determines the hours, advances from east to west, crossing each meridian at the same instant, no matter where the observer may be placed along the line of the meridian.

If one observer were at the North Pole facing south along the meridian of Columbus, and another on the equator facing either north or south, and a third at the South Pole, facing north, they would all have the same actual hour of the twenty-four at the same moment. Yet, though it were noon to the observer on the equator, it would be unending night to the observer at that one of the poles whose hemisphere was inclined away from the sun, and unending day to the observer at the opposite pole.

The change of time that you evidently have in mind is produced by difference of position in longitude, and longitude is reckoned along the parallels of latitude which run east and west parallel with the equator.

The rotation of the earth, once every twenty-four hours, in a direction from west to east, is the cause of the succession of day and night by bringing different sides of the earth in regular turn toward, or under, the sun. The time taken for one rotation of the earth has been artificially divided into the twenty-four hours, which have no natural basis except as they are so many equal parts of the period required by the earth to turn once completely over or around. That period might just as well have been divided into ten, or into a hundred, equal parts, the division being simply a matter of human convenience.

The lower animals, as far as we know, have no sense of any division of the rotation period of the earth, being aware only that part of the time the sun shines and part of the time there is no sun visible and darkness pervails.

Although it is the same actual hour of the twenty-four along the whole course of any meridian, from pole to pole, yet the local times of sunrise and sunset vary widely according to the position of the observer on the meridian, except at just two opposite times of the year, which are called the equinoxes, when the sun is exactly over the equator. At those times (about March 20 and September 23), the sun rises and sets everywhere (barring the effects of atmospheric refraction) at the same hour, and then day and night are everywhere of equal length.

To return to the question of the change of time with change of longitude. You must always relongitude that our division of each successive day into twenty-four hours, beginning with 1 and ending with 24 is purely artificial. Nature fixes no place where the reckoning begins, and where the hour 24 changes automatically back to 1. We might fix that place at the point where we happen to be, but when we visited our distant friends living far to the east or the west, we would find that their reckoning was very different from ours.

As the world has become united by the spread of population around it and the invention of means of rapid communication, it has been found necessary to fix upon a certain meridian where by common consent, and for common advantage, the reckoning of the hours of the day shall be supposed to begin. The meridian, the prime meridian of the earth, is situated 180 degrees from the meridian passing through the observatory of Greenwich, England, or, if we consider a meridian as a complete circle of the earth, then that half of the meridian of Greenwich which lies on the opposite side of the earth from Greenwich marks the line along which the day begins, or where the twenty-fourth hour of an expiring day changes to the first hour of the succeeding day.

This line runs about through the middle of the Pacific ocean, and in crossing it the voyager either drops a day or adds a day to his reckoning, according as he is traveling east or west. If he is going west he drops, or skips a day; if he is going east he adds one. To make this a little more specific, suppose he crosses the line going west at 10 a.m., Monday, October 1; then as soon as he is over he will reckon his time and date as Tuesday, October 2, 10 a.m. On the other hand, if re-crosses going east on Tuesday, October 2, he will go back to Monday, October 1. Observe that in either case the change involves an entire day so that the hour of the day is not changed.

On the same principle any considerable change of place of the observer, either toward the east or toward the west, necessitates a corresponding change of his watch to make it accord with the local time of the new meridian to which the watch has been brought. Since there are 360 degrees, and also twenty-four hours in one complete circle of the earth, it follows that a change of 15 degrees of longitude involves a change of one hour in the time.

Want Russians To Hold Chinese Eastn. Railway

(Special To The China Press)

Peking, Jan. 20.—The United States Government has made it known to the Soviet Government of Russia that America would not welcome any arrangement by which the Chinese Eastern Railway was restored to the absolute control of China, according to a report published in the Peking Chen Pao, a vernacular newspaper that is especially well informed on foreign affairs.

Great Britain, says the Chen Pao, has, after some hesitation and subject to certain conditions, informed the Soviet Government that it endorses the American viewpoint.

American and British objection to the restoration of the Chinese Eastern Railway to the full control and ownership of China is believed by the Chen Pao to be due, in part, to the fear that Japan will ultimately get control of the Railway under these circumstances.

Another reason advanced by the Chen Pao for the stand taken by America and Great Britain is the fact that France, owing to the heavy French interest in the Russo-Asiatic Bank, is likely to make certain financial demands upon China in connection with the administration of the Railway.

It is evident, says the Chen Pao, that neither America nor Great Britain desire to see Japanese, or Franco-Japanese, influence dominant in the administration of the Chinese Eastern Railway. On the other hand, according to the Chen Pao, it is understood that both America and Great Britain, although opposed to the restoration of the Railway to China at the present time, are anxious that China shall ultimately become the absolute possesor of the line. From the above, the Chen Pao says, it becomes evident that no immediate progress can be expected in the negotiations that are now going on between the Peking Government and Mr. A. K. Paikess, special envoy of the Soviet Republic, with regard to the return to China of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

Chita To Move Upon Habarovsk

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Jan. 20.—Reuter's correspondent at Harbin, writing on the 17th instant, says:

It is reported that the Russian Far Eastern Command is diligently preparing an offensive with the object of recapturing Habarovsk. The headquarters of the Far Eastern army has been transferred from Chita to Blagovoschensk, from where it will be easier to direct the operations.

The Relief Committee is contemplating the dispatch of the fourth relief train from Harbin to Soviet Russia in the very near future.

Mr. I. A. Michailoff, Acting Manager of the Commercial Department of the Chinese Eastern Railway, has resigned and will be replaced by Mr. Dicheskul, former Assistant Manager under Mr. Chistiakoff. This change created a tremendous sensation in railway circles. Mr. Michailoff was only recently appointed Acting Manager.

The local Taoyin, Mr. Chang Shou-tsin, and the Chief of Police Mr. Tsing Yung-hui, have organised a relief committee for Russian refugees and poor Chinese in North Manchuria. All Chinese administrative, commercial and judicial organisations are represented on this committee. The funds in the hands of the committee consist chiefly of donations and already amount to $200,000, out of which General Chang Tso-lin contributed $100,000.

Large premises have been rented by the committee for Russian refugees in "Hospital Town," and there good food and warm clothing are distributed to the refugees free of cost. Mr. Li, Chief Secretary of the Kirin Bureau is in charge of the Administrative Department of the Committee's work, and he personally superintends. Although this charitable home was only opened on January 1 there are now sixty refugees living there. The building only has accommodation for one hundred refugees, and as the number of applicants is daily increasing the committee has asked the Railway Administration to rent them two more houses.

Messrs. Ostroumoff and Skidelsky have been asked to serve as Honorary Vice-Presidents of the Committee.

Interviewed regarding this work Mr. Li said that the Chinese had not forgotten the help received from Russia during the famine in China, and were anxious to help the Russians now. Moreover, the Chinese thought that if the refugees were left without support they might become a dangerous element of the community.

The Committee intends not only to feed and clothe the refugees but also to provide them with work, and with this object in view special refugee workshops will be established.

It is reported in Harbin that General Sun Lieh-chun, Tuchun of Kirin, has resigned and that General Wu Chun-sheng, Tuchun of Heilungkiang, will succeed General Sun, General Chu Ching-lan, former Governor of Canton, who has held various posts in Heilungkiang, succeeding General Wu.

Vanderbeek, Long With Nanyang, Is Leaving For Wusih

Prof. H. A. Vanderbeek, formerly dean of Civil Engineering department of Nanyang College here, will go to Wusih to be the Principal of the new Technical College established there by the Soochow University. The new Technical College will have the buildings erected under the direction of Prof. Vanderbeek.

Professor Vanderbeek has been in Nanyang College for eight years, and to his energetic work the success of the Civil Engineering department is indebted. When the College was changed to be a part of the Chiao Tung University, the Civil Engineering department removed to Tong-shan College of that University last summer, and Prof. Vanderbeek remained here in charge of the extention work of the College, and held classes of surveying and engineering economics at the same time.

Principal C. Chang of Nanyang Colleges held a dinner in honor of Professor Vanderbeek and the senior classes of the Mechanical Engineering and Electrical Engineering departments gave farewell party for him in addition to other offers.

Tells France To Shun Policy Of Military Might

(Special To The China Press)

London, Jan. 18.—Wickham Steed, chief editor of the London Times, cautions France not to make a grave blunder by basing her policy on might.

Mr. Steed adds that formidable explosions of American indignation against the attitude of France were prevented only by the government of the United States bringing the greatest pressure to bear on the American press.

The London Star calls attention to this leader in the Times as throwing glaring light on the serious situation existing in Europe.

MANY ASPIRANTS SEEKING TO WIN HUNGARY THRONE

Dr. Frederic Reisz, Newcomer, Joining Local Firm Tells Of Conditions There

Dr. Frederic Reisz, physician, who has just come to Shanghai from Hungary reports that the political outlook in the 'kingdom without a king' still was full of doubt at the time he left Budapest a few weeks ago.

Following upon the recent defeat of the aims of Carl, former king, and his internment at Madeira and the eclipse of the aspirations of Admiral Horthy, Doctor Reisz said that numerous parties have come into being, each with its particular choice for the coveted place at the head of the kingdom. The parties of particular prominence at the moment, Doctor Reisz said, include one which aims to place on the throne an English prince, preferably one of the younger brothers of the Prince of Wales. Another party is supporting new aims of Admiral Horthy to effect a marriage between his daughter and a son of Archduke Joseph. Still another faction is supporting an effort to have a Belgian prince named for the place.

Doctor Reisz said that the choice probably will be made in the coming year by vote in the Hungarian Assembly. He said economic conditions in Hungary remain at a low ebb with the country struggling under the same post-war burdens that rest upon all of Europe.

Doctor Reisz is establishing enlarged laboratory facilities for the American Drug Company through which a general chemical laboratory service is to be afforded and he is also opening offices for specialised dermatological practice. He was formerly first assistant physician of the dermatological clinics at Vienna and Geneva and has degrees from a number of leading European schools.

MORE WORK AND LESS WASTE, IS GARY'S ADVICE

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Dec. 31.—More work, economy and enforcement of law and order are the prime essentials of the day, in the opinion of Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the U. S. Steel Corporation, who today made public the following statement:

"Readjustments and reconstructions are not complete. Difficulties still embarrass and industrial disturbances threaten.

"Extravagance and indolence are prevalent. Crimes and misdemeanors are common. Profiteering still exists.

"There is urgent need for more work, economy, and saving. Stricter observance and enforcement of the law are demanded.

"Even though the present period is somewhat critical, it is certain the opportunity for established peace, progress and prosperity is better than ever before.

"The signs which are apparent indicate that conditions, industrial, commercial, financial, social and political, are improving and will be more satisfactory during the present year than they were during 1921. Of course the situation may be changed by failure of the Washington Conference, by unfavorable legislation or by neglect to thoroughly and continuously maintain law and order. We have no present reason for expecting either of them."
